Aspect Ratio and notes

Aspect ratio is the relationship between length and width. A square has an aspect ratio of 1:1, as both sides are of equal length.

The chart across shows 3 shapes. The red is a square (1:1). The blue is a rectangle in SLR standard format (3:2)

A standard 6'x4' print has an aspect ratio of 3:2. So as you can see the 4:3 does not fit into the 6'x4' shape.

This is the same principle as a triangle not fitting into a square hole.

To make the smaller print fit, we must enlarge it to the 6' width. This means the original 4:3 image becomes taller than the 6'x4' print - therefore cropping at the top and bottom will occur.

This is true of all print sizes, as they all have different aspect ratios, therefore different cropping will occur.
